Note From Jerry In The Studio...

This is one of the easiest things you can do to spice up your playing and stop sounding like you're just running through a scale.

Remember, you can apply the same tip to the A string as well. Just go up two frets towards your picking hand and down two strings.

The Gimme note is shown as an X but you can swap. In other words, anytime you can play the diamond, try substituting the green X or if you land on the green X, try swapping and playing the diamond.

This applies all the way up the neck. Do it everywhere and get in a habit of it!

Attention All Power Pickers Using The LGF&E System...

Did you pick up on the idea that anytime you play that top string Gimme-Gimme you can apply it to any note you play on your "high" E string as well? You wanna get some serious coordination and wild sounding stuff? By learning to string skip on this, you'll inject rocket fuel into your playing!
